

On Shichi-Go-San, parents would buy chitose-ame (1000-year candy) – long pink-and-white candy sticks for their children. They wish for their children's lives to be long and sweet, like the candy. The candy bags are often decorated with cranes and turtles, which are symbols of good luck, happiness and longevity.

